Jokes

Two giant windmills are out on a hilltop. One turns to the other and asks, "What kind of music do you like? "

The other one says, "I'm a really big metal fan."

I'm trying to organize a hide-and-seek tournament.

But good players are really hard to find.

I asked my wife, "I'm stuck on a crossword clue—Overworked Postman— can you help me?"

She said, "Sure. How many letters?"

I said, "I'm guessing—too many."

I switched all the labels on my wife's spice rack.

She doesn't know it yet, but her thyme's cumin.

As I put my car in reverse, I thought to myself...

"This takes me back."

Drawing Challenge

Draw:

- Something tall
- Something made from paper
- Nature

It's up to you what you draw with these challenges, it can mean something different for you than it might be for someone else.

Use different forms if you have them paint, pencils, felt tips, chalk, crayons. These can be helpful to layer up and bring texture if they suit your drawing.

Maths quiz

$$9243 + 75834 =$$

Poetry

Make the following into a poem;

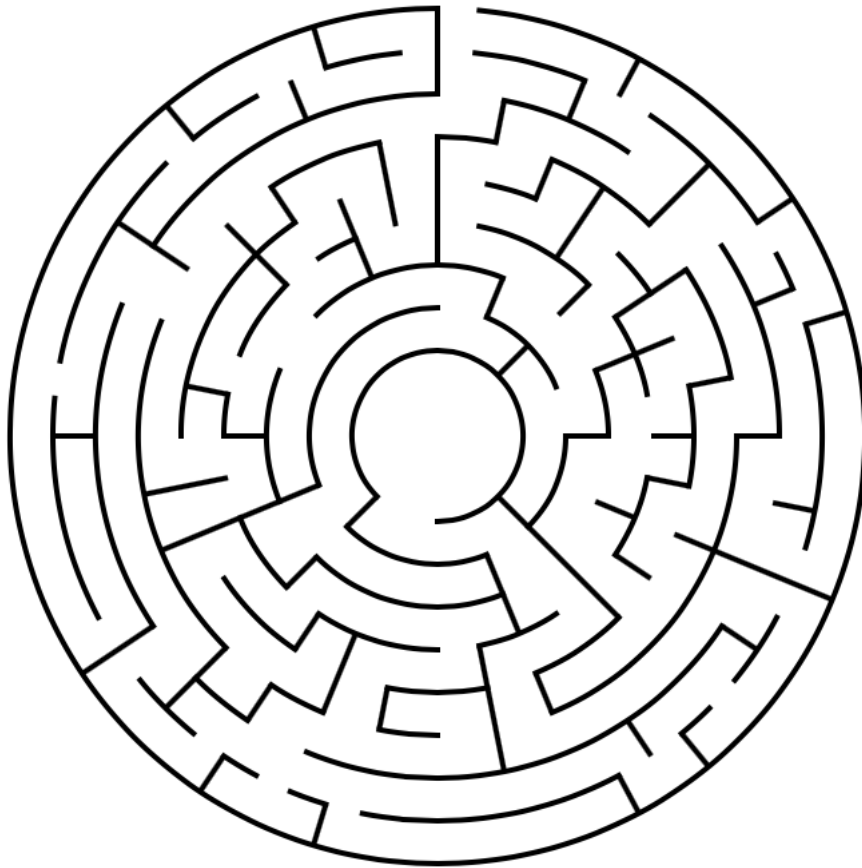

I closed my eyes....

Fell into a dream....

It seemed so real .....

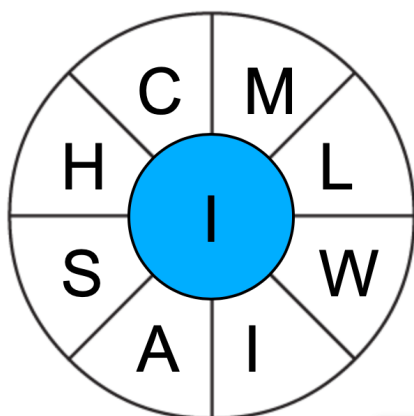

Or was it?

Maze

Word Wheel

How many words can you make with the letters from the word wheel? Each word must use the letter in the centre of the wheel.

Read: The Mothers by Jill Bialosky

We loved them.
We got up early
to toast their bagels.
Wrapped them in foil.
We filled their water bottles and canteens. We washed and bleached their uniforms,
the mud and dirt
and blood washed clean
of brutality. We marveled
at their bodies,
thighs thick as the trunk
of a spindle pine,
shoulders broad and able,
the way their arms filled out.
The milk they drank.
At the plate we could make out
their particular stance, though each wore the same uniform as if they were cadets training for war.
If by chance one looked up at us
and gave us a rise with his chin,
or lifted a hand, we beamed.
We had grown used to their grunts,
mumbles, and refusal to form a full sentence.
We made their beds and rifled through their pockets
and smelled their shirts to see if they were clean.
How else would we know them?
We tried to not ask too many questions
and not to overpraise.
Sometimes they were ashamed of us;
if we laughed too loud,
if one of us talked too long to their friend,
of our faces that had grown coarser.
Can't you put on lipstick?
We let them roll their eyes,
curse, and grumble at us

after a game if they'd missed a play or lost. We knew to keep quiet;
the car silent the entire ride home.
What they were to us was inexplicable.
Late at night, after they were home in their beds,
we sat by the window and wondered
when they would leave us
and who they would become
when they left the cocoon of our instruction.
What kind of girl they liked.
We sat in a group and drank our coffee
and prayed that they'd get a hit.
If they fumbled a ball or struck out
we felt sour in the pit of our stomach.
We paced. We couldn't sit still or talk.
Throughout summer we watched the trees behind the field grow fuller
and more vibrant and each fall
slowly lose their foliage—
it was as if we wanted to hold on to every and each leaf.
