

A Love That Never Dies

How do we grieve? Why do we grieve? And why are we afraid of those that do grieve?

A new documentary film by acclaimed film makers Jimmy Edmonds and Jane Harris, produced by Beyond Goodbye Media for the Good Grief Project

In a world of strange silences and hidden anxieties two bereaved parents search for a better way to grieve

Jane Harris and Jimmy Edmonds' son Josh died six years ago while travelling in SE Asia. As a way of honouring his memory, they set off on their own road trip across the USA to find out why, in a world where death will always make front page news, real life conversations about death, dying and bereavement are so problematic.

Along the way they find other bereaved families with stories of grief that refuse social expectations about moving on or letting go.

In a culture that is still uneasy talking about death, dying and bereavement it gives a voice to grief in ways that will move and inspire.

There will be a charity screening of A Love That Never Dies, in Ashton-Under-Lyne on Thursday 6th September, and details of other screenings across the country can be found here
