It can be easy to assume that you are not entitled to means-tested payments but at Age UK Oxfordshire we know that thousands of people are missing out on Pension Credit they are entitled to.

The attached diagrams help you determine if you might qualify for Pension Credit, a means-tested payment. Keep in mind that these diagrams provide approximate figures and may not cover all situations. Some types of income and capital are either fully or partially ignored, such as:

- Disability benefits (e.g., Attendance Allowance, Disability Living Allowance, Personal Independence Payment) are not counted as income.
- Home value: The value of the home you live in is not counted as capital.

Certain circumstances can increase your eligibility, like living alone while receiving a disability benefit. The diagrams include lines that expand the eligibility area to illustrate these positive impacts.

How to Use the Diagrams:

1. Total Weekly Income: Look along the bottom of the diagram.
2. Total Capital: Look up the side of the diagram.

If the lines cross within the eligibility zone that matches your circumstances, you may qualify for Pension Credit.

Receiving Pension Credit can lead to being entitled to many other things, such as:

- Winter Fuel Payments of £200 to £300 per year
- A free TV licence for people over 75 years old
- Help with council tax payments
- Help with rent payments, if you rent your home
- Extra help with the cost of some NHS treatments

Here are some written examples of the positive impact of different circumstances:

Example single person: Born after 5th April 1953

If they start to receive AA, live alone, and have no one claiming Carers Allowance to look after them their entitlement to Pension Credit would go up and they could still claim Pension Credit even if they had:

- up to another £82 in weekly income (e.g. from private pensions)
- or up to £41,450 in savings*
- or be earning up to £16,120 annually after tax*

Example couple: Both born after 5th April 1953

If both start to receive AA and they both help each other with day-to-day tasks, their entitlement to Pension Credit would go up and they could still claim Pension Credit even if they had:

- up to another £258 in weekly income (e.g. from private pensions)
- or up to £129,300 in savings*
- or be earning up to £31,470 annually after tax*

If you would like an accurate answer regarding your entitlement, you can use an online calculator such as the one of the Age UK website here:
