How to stay safe when it's hot

High temperatures and humidity can be a health risk – especially as we get older. Here are some helpful tips for staying safe during hot weather.

When you're out and about

- Avoid spending time outside or exercising during the hottest part of the day (between 11.00am and 3.00pm). Where possible, try to keep in the shade
- Wear a sun hat and carry a bottle of water with you.
- Wear light-coloured, lightweight cotton clothing.
- Keep an eye on the weather forecast.
- Apply suncream, even when it's cloudy. You should use at least SPF 30 and apply it regularly. Make sure you don't miss any spots – it can be easy to forget bald patches, for instance.
- Talk to your optician about prescription sunglasses. Make sure any sunglasses you wear have a CE mark and UV400 label.

When you're at home

- Keep blinds down and windows closed when it's cooler inside
- Most medication should be kept below 25°C – so it can be best to keep it in the fridge when it's really hot.
- Check your skin for changes every few months. If you notice that a mole has changed colour or shape or has been bleeding, talk to your doctor.
- Drink plenty to avoid getting dehydrated and keep eating even if you're not feeling too hungry. It can be best to avoid alcohol.

If you get too hot

- A damp cloth or a splash of water on the back of your neck can be better at cooling you down than a fan
- Watch out for signs of dehydration, such as confusion, cramps, dark urine and feeling tired. You don't have to feel thirsty to be dehydrated.
- Be careful of heat exhaustion – symptoms include headaches, dizziness, nausea and a fast pulse. If you feel ill, lie down in a cool room, drink plenty of fluids, and cool yourself with a splash of water. Call your local pharmacist or 111 for advice.
- Heat exhaustion can lead to heatstroke. Symptoms include falling unconscious and seizures. Call 999 immediately if you think you or someone else might have heatstroke.
- If you know it's going to be particularly hot, ask someone to check on you. In turn, check on others you think might need it.

Thursday 11th September 1.00pm-2.00pm Building Tour of 2 Temple Place, WC2R 3BD

Two Temple Place is a dazzling neo-Tudor gem with an array of whimsical and Gothic elements on Victoria Embankment, commissioned by and built for William Waldorf Astor in the 1890s. Two Temple Place is owned by the registered charity The Bulldog Trust.

Two Temple Place, sitting on the Victoria embankment and commissioned by and built for William Waldorf Astor in the 1890s was both an ornate historical and literary fantasy and a working office. It retains that unusual public-private mode to this day. It is the home of the Bulldog Trust, a social impact charity using Two Temple Place for a key tool in its cultural, community and educational work, making it available for public and private use as a core element of what we do. We take the guardianship of this remarkable building very seriously, with conservation projects in constant development. On this page, we summarise the Astors' back story of how they came by their remarkable fortune, the biography of William Waldorf Astor and how that helped create the building, Two Temple Place's rise from the ashes of WWII bombing and its modern history culminating in its current vital charity role.

In recent years, studies have shown that engaging in social activities such as playing board games and card games can positively impact cognitive function and potentially lower the risk of developing cognitive impairment.

Our club will run every Thursday afternoon from 5.00pm till 7.00pm. We will supply all the necessary items for this and we are happy to serve coffee, tea and water.

The first season will be on Thursday, 26th June at 5.00pm in Victoria Library, 160 Buckingham palace Road, Victoria SW1W 9UD.

Age UK National Campaign - Digitally excluded

So many older people are frustrated and feel like they are not in control of how they live their lives. Some feel like they're losing their independence.

With access to NHS appointments, council services and even paying for a car park swiftly moving online, we must stand up and prevent older people from being locked out of daily life. Simply put, those who want to remain offline should not be overlooked.

The Government is making important decisions on this issue as we speak, and I'll be handing in the petition in the coming months to let them know what impact digital exclusion has on older people's lives.

Age UK Westminster Forthcoming Activities and Events

The more people that sign the petition, the more the Government will have to listen. Will you sign the petition to help protect offline access - and help us get to 120,000 signatures?

Sign it at <https://campaigns.ageuk.org.uk/page/135031/petition/1?locale=en-GB>

Public Switched Telephone Network (PSTN) migration

By January 2027, the analogue technology which has connected homes and businesses throughout the country for decades will be shut down. The network, called the Public Switched Telephone Network (PSTN), is becoming more fragile, less reliable and harder to maintain. As a result, landline providers are upgrading the old technology to modern digital services.

This transition will be seamless for most users, but vulnerable individuals who rely on telecare alarms will require special attention to help make sure telecare alarms keep working through the switchover.

The national telecare campaign launched on the 2nd June. Created through collaboration between BT, VMO2, the UK Government, TSA, and LGA, this toolkit includes resources to help residents, and their support networks take action during the digital switchover. Landline phones across the UK are switching from old analogue technology to modern digital services. The National Telecare Campaign is helping to keep people safe and supported through the switchover by asking telecare users and their family, friends and carers to tell their landline provider they have telecare.
